Mobility barriers

Please tick the box(es) that fit your circumstances, according to your opinion. More than one answer is possible. This information is solely used anonymously, to gather statistics to improve the Erasmus programme, and making it an inclusive programme for all!

- Disability: This includes physical, mental, intellectual or sensory impairments which, due to various barriers, may hinder someone's full and effective participation in the programme.
- Health problems: Barriers may result from health issues including severe illnesses, chronic diseases, or any other physical or mental health-related situation that prevents from participating in the programme.
- Barriers linked to the educational system: Individuals struggling to perform in education and training systems for various reasons. Educational difficulties can be linked to personal circumstances, but they mostly result from the structural limitations within the educational system. For instance, that the study programme does not provide sufficient elective space making it difficult for the student to participate in the programme, or that the educational system does not fully take into account the individual's particular needs.
- Cultural differences during the mobility: Being exposed to foreign languages and cultural differences when taking part in an international mobility programme may be a barrier or it can limit the benefits from their participation. It may even prevent potential participants from applying for support through the programme, thereby representing an entry barrier. Cultural differences can be perceived as a barrier to participate by people from any background, and can particularly affect people with fewer opportunities, especially people with a migrant or refugee background, people belonging to a national or ethnic minority, sign language users, people with linguistic adaptation and cultural inclusion difficulties, etc.

- Social barriers: Social barriers can stem from family circumstances, for instance being the first in the family to attend higher education or being a parent (especially a single parent), a caregiver, a breadwinner, or an orphan, or having lived or currently living in institutional care. Other social barriers can stem from social marginalization or social adjustment difficulties such as limited social competences, anti-social or high-risk behaviours, (former) offenders, (former) drug or alcohol abusers.
- Economic barriers: Economic disadvantages like a low standard of living, low income, students who need to work to support themselves, dependence on the social welfare system, in long-term unemployment, precarious situations or poverty, being homeless, in debt or with financial problems, etc., may represent a barrier to participate. Barriers may also stem from difficulties to transfer or continue to receive any (economic) support services during the participants time abroad.
- Barriers linked to discrimination: Barriers can occur because of discriminations linked to gender, age, ethnicity, religion, beliefs, sexual orientation, disability, or as a result of the intersection between two or more of the mentioned barriers.
- Geographical barriers: Geographical barriers can be experienced by people from remote or rural areas, people living in small islands or in peripheral regions, people from urban problem zones, people from less serviced areas (limited public transport, poor facilities).
- None of the above.

ARTICLE 3 – FINANCIAL SUPPORT

- 3.4 The financial support may not be used to cover similar costs already funded by Union funds.
