About the course

The objective in this course is to learn together how to think in the paradigm of qualitative research, how to design a sound qualitative study, how to select a proper mixture of qualitative methods for data collection and data analysis, and of course, we practice the related skills with each other. These skills are helpful in your academic projects (e.g., the academic papers), as well as in a wide range of professional practices (e.g., consultancy projects).

The teaching format will be weekly in-person tutorials, weekly online interactive lectures , knowledge clips, and readings. This course will be assessed through a group paper and executive summary and an individual take home exam.

Please go to our introductory module to find elaborate instructions and information on this course (live lectures, interactive sessions, and literature, etc.).
